DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kakiyara et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,293,163) in view of Mizushima (JP 11-281378).

As to claim 7, Kakiyara et al. disclose a display method for a car navigation system which displays a position and proceeding direction of a user's car on a road map and displays a guide route on the road map (See abstract), the display method overlapping displaying a graphic at a position on the road map corresponding to traffic information (See col. 14, lines 66-68-col. 15, lines 1-10). Kakiyara et al. although disclose the display is made in overlapped manner of the road and traffic information; it does not specifically disclose traffic jam statistical information. In an analogous art, Mizushima discloses a navigation device wherein it discloses display means 9 and a road traffic information reception means 7 for receiving road traffic information including at least time and traffic jam information based on the road system; and the navigation device is provided with a traffic jam information history storage means (See abstract). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the system of Kakiyara et al. with that of Mizushima by having a graphic displaying traffic jam statistical information and a reliability of the traffic jam statistical information in order to provide a navigation device for predicting a situation such as traffic jam.

Claims 8, 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kakiyara et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,293,163) in view of Mizushima (JP 11-281378) and Nanba et al. (U.S. Patent no. 5,874,905).

As to claims 8, 10, Kakiyara et al. and Mizushima disclose all but fail to specifically disclose a display classifying colors with traffic jam and a circle. In an analogous art, Nanba et al. disclose traffic jam, a display which changes in colors and classifying colors but does not specifically disclose a circle and classifying the colors with the traffic jam. However, Nanba et al. also disclose different patterns and direction mark in larger size and changing color in the display and thicker line (See col. 11, lines 1-14). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have different patterns and colors with display and traffic jam in order to better understand the displayed route information.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 12/06/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to Applicant's representative arguments, Applicant's representative states that "the Examiner has failed to indicate whether the combination of the Kakiyara patent and the Mizushima publication discloses or suggests the entire subject matter of claim 7. Further the Examiner has failed to indicate why one of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to combine the teachings of these references. and also argues that the Nanba publication does not disclose or suggest the subject matter missing from the Kakihara patent and Mizushima publication with respect to claim 7."

Examiner has pointed out in the office action all limitations of the claims. Applicant's representative on the other fails to indicate which part of the claims he thinks that the combination of patent and publication has failed to teach and states that the combination fails to suggest the entire subject matter of claim 7. Also Applicant's representative fails to again what subject matter is missing in Nanba. The rejection clearly states all limitations.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the rejection is maintained.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
